This weekend, residents in East Hollywood will review designs for the public art installation that will serve as the official gateway to Little Armenia, a cultural landmark that has been years in the making and will serve as a point of pride for the community.

The meeting will take place Saturday, March 25, 10a-12p, at the Hollywood Banquet Hall, 5214 Sunset Boulevard, Hollywood, 90027.

The Little Armenia Gateway Project Professional Peer Panel recently announced the five finalists: artist team Atanian Art Center comprised of Vladimir Atanian, Gor Atanian, and Armen Kazanchyan; Ilan Averbuch; Cliff Garten; artist team Narineh Mirzaeian and Heather Roberge; and Heath Satow. The designs can be reviewed here.

I want to congratulate the talented artists who were chosen as finalists, as well as the Department of Cultural Affairs and the Bureau of Engineering for collaborating with my office and the community on this world-class project.

See you Saturday morning!

CITY SEEKS TO PRESERVE EAST HOLLYWOOD HOME FOR CHILDCARE

EAST HOLLYWOOD - The City of Los Angeles is seeking organizations to submit qualifications and proposals to restore a dilapidated, decades-old craftsman-style house and turn it into a childcare facility that includes an affordable housing unit.

The property, located at 1816 N Wilton Place and built in 1911, was previously slated for auction. Instead of the property going to the highest bidder with the possibility of demolition, Councilmember Mitch O'Farrell seeks to preserve the structure, while providing onsite childcare services for the community along with one unit of affordable housing.

BUS STOP BENCHES INSTALLED ON SUNSET

SILVER LAKE - After meeting with residents in Silver Lake, Mitch and the community identified three additional locations to install bus stop benches along Sunset Blvd: one on Benton Way, and two on either side of Bates Avenue near the Laguna Senior Center.

CITY COUNCIL CELEBRATES BIG READ

CITY HALL - As Chair of the City's Arts, Parks, and Los Angeles River Committee, Mitch is honored to shine the spotlight on the Department of Cultural Affairs and the Big Read program, which aims to encourage the enjoyment of literature and poetry in Los Angeles. The featured reading this year: The Collected Poems of Emily Dickinson. Joining the celebration Friday: David Kipen from the National Endowment for the Arts, as well as local students.

ELYSIAN PARK - Due to a host of climate related issues, the canopy in Elysian Park has been in decline. City Plants and RAP applied for a grant from the Arbor Day Foundation and Boise Project UP, a program under Boise Paper that aims to transform distressed urban spaces into revitalized green spaces. Partners will utilize Land Life Cocoons, provided by LADWP as a pilot program, and the first ever in the City to pair low-water use seedlings with the drought-resilient planting technology.

CITY PLANNING ANNUAL REPORT

CITY HALL - Los Angeles Department of City Planning released its annual report which highlights some of the policy work that Mitch has been working on. The report also focuses some of the exciting projects in the 13th District, including PATH Metro Villas, Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital, Paramount Pictures Specific Plan, and future improvements at 285 Lucas Avenue, and 6409 Sunset Boulevard.
